DESCRIPTION:

The Use of Force "User" Training Program (UOFUTP) is a three (3) day program, designed to provide the Law Enforcement Officer with the knowledge and skills necessary to reasonably utilize force and justify that force against the constitutional and judicial standard of reasonableness. This course will provide the officer with more definitive answers on the application of force while reducing the gray areas in its overall use. The law enforcement officer will be more proficient in knowing when not to use force as well as be effective in administering force and fully understand it is acceptable to do so. This program specifically covers constitutional standards, case reviews, articulation (verbal and written) and practical applications. The officer will demonstrate through reality-based training drills, scenarios and practical exercises their knowledge and proficiency in the use of force.

Attendees are required to bring their own duty weapons (primary and secondary), duty equipment, duty attire (long sleeve and pants) and note-taking material. NLTA (Non-Lethal Training Ammunition) protective equipment will be provided as well as 200 rounds of NLTA per attendee.
